30 August 7 - All hands abourd. At seven bell's we east off mooring lines and weighed anchor. By eight bells all stations were seawed, the sails imfurled. and we had slipped beyond the last point of land. A westerly wind caught canvas. and drew us toward the open sea. There was nucous excitement and quiet expectation as the crew felt the ship surge forward with the wind and arak with the confrontation of the water. The most sea lay ahead as we set sail.

16 Aug. to 3 Sept. 71 — During August new and old crew members came to sign on for the year's voyage. As the journey started, changes had to be made in many of the crew's quarters. Our ship's navigators were kept busy helping the crew settle down and teaching the new recruits seamanship. Class orientations, a pep-rally, and a game were a few of the activities scheduled for the crew. As the voyage continued, the spirit of tradition grew. This spirit brought with it class unity and pride in both the ship and shipmates. This helped the ship through the rough waters of the first week.

4 Sept. to 10 Sept. 71 - The voyage swept on with few major incidents until 8 Sept. On that day, Smile Day and Hand Day commenced. The passageways resounded with Pep Club's singing. Each female member of the crew was presented with a Smille Sticker, and each was expected to do her part in making it a "smilie" day. Also held that day was judging for Hand Day, It was a yearbook sponsored event with the staff choosing the most pirate-like hand for a picture in the book. Two days later at a pep-rally, the results of Hand and Smile Day were announced. Pat Herrmann was awarded best smile in the entire crew. Sue Navlor received best smile in the Senior Class, Terry Collard best in Junior Class, Pam Petty best in Sophomore Class, and Vell Killpack best in Freshman Class, Shawn Rees took first place in the Hand Contest, with Dave Ellis, Mike Burrell, Cory Withers, Rupert Dobesh, and Bill Cruz also receiving awards. Following an evening encounter with the Murray vessel, Seamen Second Class hosted a dance with Passion Flower providing the music.

Autumn Activities

13 Sept. to 24 Sept. 71 - On the 13th, Seamen First Class held a conference in which Jan Jones and Owen Black were elected to fill the vacant offices of Cheerleader and Senator, respectively. The next day, all hands were given leave to attend a program at the University of Utah honoring the Apollo 15 astronauts. The Junior STEP testing began 20 Sept. and lasted four days. This test has been given each year to determine students' ability level and knowledge. Three activities were held the 23rd. CHAG hosted a mother daughter social. It was a fashion show centering on the theme "Lollipops and Roses." Clothes were furnished by Miss K-G and presented by Paris-All-Models. Men Mudrigals sang the theme song at intermission. Chess club had a car wash. The participating members joked and laughed with wet clothes and feet, fearful that any minute they might get a bucket of water over the head. Homecoming posters began appearing on the bulkheads. Final voting for Homecoming Queen was held

28 Aug. to 5 Nov. 71 - Before the voyage and between battles, the Pirate team put in many hours practicing various defensive and offensive moves. During that time they worked out plays, but more important they learned to work as a strong, unified team. On 28 Aug., they were faced with their first battle. That evening, they set a pattern that was to carry most of the season. They defeated Cottonwood 21 to 0. Many other battles followed as the team drove on through the season. By defeating such formidable foes as Judge and Tooele, the Pirate team proved itself unequaled by any in the Division and won itself a berth in the State quarter-finals. The day before the playoffs, the team was honored in a pep-rally. The morning hours of 5 Nov. saw the team, accompanied by five busloads of fans, journeying to Logan for their final battle.

Homecoming

24 Sept. 71 — At four bells, sailors from past voyages came aboard. Activities were planned around the theme "On You Mighty Pirates." Improvements and changes were noted on an excursion of the ship. Refreshments were served to the visitors. Richard Clegg hosted an Alumni Assembly. Cheerleaders donned uniforms from the past and led the school fight song - the old school song. The program also featured a slide presentation of former Homecoming Royalty. Entered in the log as this year's Royalty were Pat Herrmann, Queen; Sue Naylor, First Attendant; Tori Schneller, Second Attendant. The Jack Anderson Combo played for the Homecoming Dance. On the playing field Cyprus met Bingham. Spinnakers and Pirettes presented the half-time program. Activities ended at six bells.

Pirate Spirit

As a walk the decks of this proud ship, memories rise to mind, and I know the Pirate spirit lives on Always there are struggles against some for enturies ago it was the battle of Puerto Nuevo From the seaward side, the settlement was defended by a fort. For three days a fierce, bloody fight ensued as we bom barded this stronghold. Their cannons roaced out scattering death over the decks. Roaring out orders, the captain mustered all the strength we had left aboard As we fired, we saw her powder house ga up in flames. The blast wrought such terror and confusion, that we were able to sweep in past the fort and take the city.

Nov. to 24 Nov. 71 — Song-n-Yell began. Three weeks were alloted to develop songs, cheers, props and gimmicks into a polished performance. While four classes tried to prepare totally unique performances, the banner committee tried to unite the program under a single tableau. A dress rehearsal afforded all students an opportunity to see each class's production. As the final performance closed, a month of preparation left only memories. . . . And we stowed the tradition of Song-n-Yell away for another voyage.

Dracula (Paul Don Ellett) sweeps down on his victim

30 Nov. to 2 Dec. 71 — After weeks of preparation, the ship's company of actors produced the play Dracula. The actors sent an invitation to the crew of one of the elementary ships to come aboard and view their dress rehearsal. They then entertained our crew with performances held at 7 bells on the quarterdeck. The setting was an old sanitarium and the scenes took place in various parts of the building. Wolf cries and bat squeaks brought a sense of terror to the play. A swinging bookcase kept the coming's and going's of Dracula secret and finally led to his doom. Dramatic lighting and costuming brought interest and attention to the play. These special effects assisted in creating suspenseful and breathtaking performances

December Begins

30 Nov. to 3 Dec. 71 — At the beginning of the week a ship's bulletin came out with an announcement of Key Club Week. During the week outstanding crew members belonging to the club were honored. They were chosen according to their leadership and participation in activities in the club. The week was highlighted by the Key Club Banquet. Captain Edwards was the guest speaker and the ship's Madrigals sang a selection of songs. Ending the week was an assembly brought to us from the ship B.Y.U. by a group called the "Footprints." This group, made up of military and service organizations, entertained our crew with songs and a film

Activities Continue

6 Dec. to 10 Dec. 71 — Our senior mates found a day dedicated to them for post high school orientation. During this day the senior crew found out what colleges they could apply for. Many delegates came from these schools to describe the facilities, opportunities, and faculties which were available for the graduating crew members. Another activity of the week was the CHAG Christmas Social. Fathers were invited to the social, Everyone was kept busy teaching or learning rock dances, participating in contests, singing carols. opening presents and eating refreshments.

Special Events

9 Dec. to 10 Dec. 71 — The High School Exhibition for Pep Clubs and Drill Teams was held 9 Dec., in the University of Utah Special Events Center. Spinnakers and Pirettes competed against thirty-four groups for state titles. Pirettes marched to the music "Manhatten Beach." Spinnakers drilling to "Paint Your Wagon" were awarded first place for small Drill Teams: their second state victory. A year long project, "CCF", was unveiled 10 Dec. The crew accepted the responsibility of supporting a son. Cyprus adopted Clayton Salvador. Each Wednesday cabin representatives collected donations. Through pirate contributions to the Christian Children's Fund, Clayton was given financial aid and a happier Christmas.

Holiday Projects

10 Nov. to 14 Nov. 71 — This week Seamen Fourth Class sponsored an after game dance. Raven furnished the music. Many were in attendance. To celebrate the coming of Christmas Hohdays, PTSA sponsored a door decorating contest. The first place winner was Mrs. Holt's cabin. They received $15.00. Mrs. Merrill's cabin was judged second, and third place was a tie between Mr. Taylor's and Mr. Arbon's classes. The Executive Council held a hall decorating contest. Interested seamen submitted plans for each hall. Winners were Bart Barker, first place; Janice Yeates, second, and third place winning design was done by Kan Taylor and Pam Lindsay.

December Programs

Christmas musical programs sparked the holiday season

15 Dec. to 16 Dec. 71 — A meeting of the Honor Society was held 15 Dec., in which fifteen new members were inducted. Guests included parents of the seamen and First Mate, William DeNiro. Speeches on scholarship, leadership, character and service were presented by the society officers. With combined efforts of Concert Orchestra, Concert Choir and guest performers, Handel's Messiah was presented 16 Dec The special Christmas program was a musical interpretation of the life of Christ.

7 Dec. to 18 Dec. 71 — For several voyages, controversy on dress standards came before the Executive Officers. It was on this voyage action was taken to abolish the dress code. Preliminary votes were taken. News articles were published. A final vote was cast. Changed, the code allowed more liberal dress of the crew. On 18 Dec. Seamen First Class presented their dance; "Somebody Said It Was Christmas." The gym was decorated as a Christmas scene with fireplace and tree. The Bob Spencer Band furnished the music, Rovalty for the dance were Pam Bailey, Queen; Pessi Hancock, Attendant; and Kathy Santistevan, Attendant.

Amahl

21 Dec. 71 — Amahl rehearsals began early in Nov The cast and orchestra put in extra hours nearly every day during the next month. The orchestra ironed out problems of a challenging score, and on 20 Dec., Amahl was presented for the students of Carl Sandburg Elementary. The following day, 21 Dec., the 6th annual performance of Amahl was presented. Two performances were given, one at 4 bells, another at 8 bells. For the production, the quasterdeck took on the appearance of a poor stone house with an earthen floor and straw beds. The Star of Bethlehem shining through a rustic window added the final touches to the setting

Holiday Scenes

21 Dec. and 22 Dec. 71 — The time had come: Jumor rings had arrived on Tuesday. Now instead of worrying about homework, the Seamen Second Class worried about money and finger size. The next day was a busy one for the crew. That morning we had an assembly featuring the Sound Column. They sang a collection of musical commercials, some songs by Carole King, and other selections of popular music. After lunch the crew was dismissed from its regular duties to cheer the basketball team on to victory over West. Later that day we found our ship in sight of a port. The crew was issued holiday passes and instructed to return to the ship 3 Jan. 72 at 6 bells. We docked at 5 bells. Final duties were completed and the crew was dismissed.

Spirit Week

8 Jan. to 14 Jan. 72 - This week was Spirit Week. The goal of the week was to increase spirit and pride in our ship. To do this, competitions were held, and each class received points for participation. The class with the most points at the end of the week was awarded the Spirit Sword. Each day was a dress-up day. Monday was Hobo Day; Tuesday, Cowboys and Indians Day Wednesday, Blue and Gold Day: Thursday, Old Folks Day; and Friday, Hippie Day. At the end of each day three people who were dressed in the most appropriate costumes received special recognition and their class was given points. To add more class points other activities, such as selling spirit badges and a telephone competition, were designed. The week ended with a pep rally. Points were added up and the winner of the week's activity was announced — the Sophomore class.

Wrestling

2 Dec. to 22 Feb. 72 — Individual gains and losses were totaled to make a team score. Winning a match gave a sense of accomplishment and appreciation for hours spent in training. During season action, afternoon and morning workouts were held to establish physical, mental and emotional conditioning. Strategy was also developed. Through team efforts Pirates received fourth place in region competition. Winning honors were: Gil Bowden, first place; Larry Rodriguez, second place; Gary Robinson, third place; and Scott Brinton, third place. The four wrestlers then went to the Spectrum on the Utah State University campus for three days of State competition, where a second place title was captured by Larry Rodriguez.

3 Dec. to 9 March 72 — Preparing for the basketball season the Pirate men worked out many hours creating new and more effective moves to defeat their opponents. On 7 Jan. they played their first season game with Bingham, winning 93 to 65. There were many close games the rest of the season. They battled the final Division games with Judge and Tooele. At the game with Judge, the game ended with the score tied. Going overtime the Pirate men won 71 to 69. They played American Fork at Hillcrest, winning a berth in the state finals. On 7 Feb., the first state game was held with Weber. The outcome resulted in a playoff with South The season concluded in a very close game on 9 March when we again traveled to the U. of U. and competed against South

February Projects

1 Feb. to 10 Feb. 72 — In the first weeks of Feb. the Seniors went through the traditional procedure of choosing graduation announcements. During lunches Seumen First Class voted to choose the announcement for the close of their four year voyage. The following week Thespians presented the play Antic Spring to the studentbody on 10 Feb. It was at that assembly the success of CCF was announced. Pirates donated enough to support Clayton Salvador the rest of the school year, through the summer months, and into the next school year. Mrs. Nielson's first period class donated the largest amount of money. A birthday present and a gift from the Class of 1972 were also sent to Clayton.

March Decisions

6 March and 7 March — The yearly dilemma of class choices was concluded Monday, 7 March, as underclassmen completed their registration for next year's voyage. In the afternoon, a pep-rally was held in preparation for the upcoming game. The most important event of the day, though, was the Weber/Cyprus game. The first state game began in our favor; but in the second quarter, the battle turned in Weber's favor, assigning us to a playoff with South in consolation. The tollowing day, 7 March, Seamen Second Class held initial voting for Junior Prom royalty. Junior Prom tickets were sold in the galley throughout the week

Officers sold tickets for the Junior Prom, "Precious and Few."

March Wind Up

8 March to 10 March 72 — On Wednesday, a state basketball consolation game was held. Our team fought against South in the Special Events Center on the University of Utah campus. Although a close game, the tide turned against Cyprus and we were defeated by one point. After the excitement of going to state, a new feeling swept through the ship. We rode smoothly with warm spring weather and steady winds. On Friday Seamen Fourth Class presented their assembly to the crew. They performed dances, pantomines, and a monologue.

Golf

3 April to 22 May 72 — In the spring, golfers began work toward numerous trophies and awards. Pre-season play began in March and season action took place in April and May. A trophy was given to the winning team at the end of division play. Dual matches were held with all schools in the region. Players were also eligible for the Eddie Minor Award, given to the top Cyprus golfer in memory of the Pirate player.

Tennis

7 March to 5 May 72. — Tennis had started. Crew members practiced on the new courts and competed for positions. They worked on perfecting their forehand and backhand swings, on developing effective lobs and slams, and on delivering skilled serves. On 7 March, the team began competing in inter-school matches. Meets continued and with them, hard practice. The season concluded with the BYU and Snow Invitationals.

17 March to 5 May 72 — For many of the track team, practice began in Jan. or earlier. Stair laps, and when weather permitted, long distance runs were used to get into condition and build endurance. Each member of the team had a specialty which he practiced and competed in, ranging from individual efforts such as hurdles, discus, and the pole vault to team relays. Cyprus competed against many other ships during the season. The track team also participated in the BYU Invitational and the All-around track meets.

Sterling Scholars

Sterling Scholars were picked from the studentbody on the basis of scholastic excellence in a certain field. Contestants worked on their portfolios, gathering information and putting them in order, and preparing for their final school interviews by teachers. Competition interviews were held at Cottonwood. Relying on their memories, past achievements, and present works of skill, our Sterling Scholars worked hard to bring honor to themselves and their school.

Honor Society

The Honor Society held several activities during the voyage. The most important were the inductions. Students who excelled in scholarship, leadership, character and service, took an oath to uphold the society's standards at candlelight ceremonies. At one of their meetings they saw a silent Charlie Chaplin movie. They also traveled to the State Capitol in Jan., sitting in on sessions of the Legislature. A big project for the year was their aluminum recycling campaign.

Mr. DeNito constituised new Society members.

Sea-lanes

On every sea, there are set ways of travel established routes to progress along, even where roads cannot be paved nor boun daries marked. These sea-lanes, though seemingly abstract, and invisible on the water war marked, however vaguely by deep channels and strong, fittel winds. Before each voyage we chart our course we determine and set our path, using our own and others understanding of the weather agree to follow a route for the year.

We plan and work and sweat to make the school go me decide that this is the astembly we will not cancel, the dance to raise money for the club, the meet waterill win, the meeting for our members the special mocial. We decide how the year will be and no government, no administration, no slump can be held in sponsible for how our year goes If we blame anyone else for its failures or give deceive ourselves.

There is a tide in the affairs of men, Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune. Omitted, all the voyages of their life is bound in shallows and in miseries. On such a full sea are we now affout. And we must take the current when it serves. Or lose our ventures.

On the 30th of May nineteen hundred and seventy-one The Log was born. With enthusiasm the idea developed and on 30 Aug. "the ship" was officially launched. As the voyage got underway, the pressure of putting a book together increased. Many nights a week saw the staff busy to late hours. The room resounded with such phrases as "Who'll go to Bucks?" and "I don't care if it is in the '63 book." The almost unbearable stress of a deadline gave way to immense relief as the sections went to press. In spring the year's work became a reality as the staff viewed their book for the first time.

Staff members did initial judging of Helm submissions

Helm

Helm, our literary magazine, came out in the spring. The staff met fourth period throughout the year. They judged and selected articles submitted by crew members in four different categories: poetry, non-fiction, short story, and art. The staff based its judgment on literary qualities. The submissions with the highest rankings were sent on to professional judges both inside and outside of Cyprus. Cash prizes were awarded to the winners. At the end of the voyage, the staff held a party to celebrate the completion of Helm.

Buccaneer

Buccaneer gave staff members an opportunity to become acquainted with the newspaper business. The business of putting a paper together included layouts, photography, and writing about changes in the school, activities, and sports. While not busy producing a paper, the staff studied other high school papers. The staff participated in university sponsored contests for photographers and sport and news writers. Outside the counseling office the staff posted a newsboard on which news of the school from community papers was placed. News stopped only as the staff took time out to celebrate Halloween, Christmas and birthdays.

Pep Band & Stage Band

Essential to a ship's well-being is music to liven the crew's spirits. Our ship was no exception. Pep Band practiced early morning hours, and played for pep-rallies and home games. They played for several Utah Stars' games and accompanied the Spinnakers in competition at Boise. Near the start of the voyage, Stage Band journeyed to B.Y.U. to hear Stan Kenton's Band. Later they played in the Stage Band/Spinnaker Assembly and at Christmas they performed at Cottonwood Mall.

Stage Band was behind the scenes at many successful programs.

Thespians

Thespians were active in school and community programs. For the studentbody a one-act play was produced. The Children's Theater was one of the Thespian programs. They revised fairy tales and then produced them on stage for the elementary children. Trips to the University of Utah were arranged so that club members could see college productions. To become a member of Thespians, one had to earn a total of ten points in two different areas of drama. To stay active a total of five points a year needed to be earned.

Four Flags

As an opening activity members of Four Flags foreign language club met in the galley for a human chess game. Students acted as chess men, with props to designate their ranks. In December the club learned carols in foreign languages and caroled in the school and community; a sleighing party was held. The club went on a tour of the B.Y.U. Language Department. Members participated in a kite flying contest in the spring.

DECA

DECA applied the principles of marketing and merchandising to their products. They had such fund raising projects as selling greeting cards, calendars, and candles. During the voyage, they held their formal induction ceremony at the Hawaiian, attended conferences at Park City, and produced TV and radio commercials for competition at the Western Region Leadership Conference. In the spring, one student was chosen to accompany Mrs. Nielson to the national convention in Los Angeles.

DECA paid the $4 00 dues for each member with fund-raising projects.

Becky Cassler and Debra Guymon defeated South's number two team.

Debate Club

Resolved: That the jury system in the United States should be significantly changed. Under this topic the debate team encountered squads from other schools. Meets were held with Granger, Bonneville, South, and Hillcrest. In February, state meets were held: The Monson tournament at Weber, the Invitational at Provo. The Regional Forensics Meet was held aboard our ship.

In December macrame belts were made and sold. In the spring, the highlight of the FHA year came about — the State FHA Convention. Held in the Hotel Utah, the convention gave girls from Cyprus a chance to associate with other FHA'ers.

Dance Club

Dance Club was composed of girls who were interested in dancing and performing. New this year was a T-shirt for each of the members printed with the club's insignia. They met Thursday nights after school to exercise and practice. At the meetings they broke up into small groups and each group choreographed a different dance. On studio nights each group presented its dance to the other members of the club. On KNAK night, 26 Jan. they presented a Charleston for the crew. They also had other concerts during the voyage.

Officers were elected at one of the first Math Club meetings.

Math Club

Math club involved crew members who were interested in and enjoyed mathematics. During the voyage they held meetings where they played mathematical number games with cards and cubes. In February they traveled to the BMA Data Processing Company and viewed computers in operation. Also during the year they visited the Hansen Planetarium and asked a guest speaker to speak to them on vocational opportunities in accounting.

Keyettes

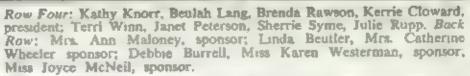

Keyettes, forty female crew members, were a group affiliated with the Key Club. They ushered at school functions and decorated classroom doors for the holidays. At Christmas the girls prepared songs and caroled through the University of Utah Hospital. Keyettes sold candy, cookbooks and window stickers. As a special honor each month a girl was selected as Keyette of the month for her service to school and community.

Key Club

A very active organization on our ship was the Key Club. They were responsible for starting a tutoring program. They presented a program at the University Club for the Bonneville Kiwanis and were honored for being the outstanding Key Club in the region. Cyprus Shipshape Week was sponsored by the club to help clean up the school. Interested in ecology, the Key Club sent two delegates to the Salt Palace for Environmental Day. They also planned an anti-drug program.

Pep Club

At the beginning of the voyage, pep club members drew names to determine their "secret sisters." They bought gifts for one another for birthdays, Christmas, and when they marched. Pirettes marched at most home football and basketball games and cheered to support the team. They travelled to the University of Utah in December, competing in the small pep club category. On 26 Jan. they presented a hobo drill at the KNAK game. In March the pep club traveled to B.Y.U. to perform in a drill with pep clubs from other schools. Before some of the games they sponsored a tea for visiting pep clubs. During the voyage they spent many hours after school decorating lockers for team members. On the day of a big game they strode through the decks cheering, singing and building spirit for the game.

C-Club

The C-Club consisted of members of the ship's crew who lettered in athletics. They raised money by selling candy at lunch and at the football and basketball games. In December, they had a Sub-for-Santa and collected money for toys, clothes, food, and other articles for two needy families in the area. In January, they sponsored the KNAK game, the proceeds of which were donated to club's treasuries. They also bought new sports equipment for the athletic department.

CAM

CAM started the year off with a Poster Contest/membership drive, to recruit new members. As another incentive to join, drawings were held using CAM activity cards. The winners received hunting knives. CAM also had a Deer Hunting contest and a Beard Growing contest. CAM and CHAG worked together in activities and sponsored an assembly.

Commodore

As Commodore of our pirate vessel, it was the duty of Mister Jensen to oversee all activity on board. The Commodore recruited navigators. It was his assignment to maintain public relations — bringing school, district and community programs together smoothly Rough seas and winds made the helm difficult to steady

First Mate DeNiro supervised curriculum and policies of the ship. He evaluated the requirements for advance ments in the crew, and he strove to bring quality to instruction at Cyprus. Second Mate Cushing was in charge of crew activities. All crew organizations and group were under his direction. Struggling with activity demands, school calendar, and program difficulties were his responsibility.

Navigators

The Navigators of our voyage guided us throughout the journey. While teaching us the fundamentals of seamanship, they gave grasping minds the chance and incentive to learn. They gave crew members the opportunity to express their individuality and develop their interests in a vocation. They also assisted the crew in planning activities for clubs and organizations.

Swabs

Deckhands assisted the crew. Pursers helped in the registration for the voyage. They were stationed in the captain's quarters, aiding the Captain and his mates. They also kept financial records of the voyage. Stewards assisted the navigators by arranging conferences. They tried to involve students in the planning of education. Stewards sponsored a fund-raising movie in November. Galley Slaves prepared and served meals. The galley workers prepared special luncheons for the navigators at the request of the Captain. They also prepared banquets for clubs and organizations, Swabs were involved in the general maintenance of the ship. cleaning decks and lockers. They tried to keep everything "ship-shape."

Executive Officers

The Executive Officers were the singly most powerful group a board, excluding the administration. Commander Dave Ellis held the final say on all crew oriented bills. Dave Ellis, Commander, Dale Catter and Shane Iones, Lieutenant Commanders; Pam Bailey and Pat Herrmann, Ensigns, held the responsibility of preparing the activity calender, and for orienting and supervising all crew activities. The crew leaders not only gained leadership experience, but also opportunities to develop ideas and to build independence. As members of the Executive Council, five officers represented fifteen hundred Cyprus seamen.

Senate

Shane Jones, lieutenant commander, presided over the Senate. He coordinated the Senate with the other branches of the government. Shane, as commander of the Senate, appointed committees to study problems concerning the students, classes, and school. The Senate was composed of two senators elected from each class. Their duties were to choose Senate officers, excluding Senate Commander, and confirm all the Commander's appointments. The Senate worked with the other organizations to keep a well disciplined ship.

House of Representatives

House members discussed and considered legislation.

Near the beginning of this voyage, eighteen delegates were chosen from among the crew to serve in the House of Representatives. The most important position of the group, Speaker of the House, was held by Lieutenant Commander Dale Catten. Second in command was Paul Don Ellett as Chairman. The Representatives met to initiate, consider, and vote on bills. Several of the seamen's complaints and many current issues found their way into the House. Among the bills considered was the Knight-Rees Act which dealt with Cyprus' equal status in the school district. Also considered was a bill allowing the entire crew to vote on the dress code. The House was direct representation of the crew in government.

Suggestions were written into bills

Among the booty taken from the manof-war was a map of Captain Morgan's treasure. Knowing it to contain in excess of a million dubloons, we wasted no time reaching the Island on which it was buried. The captain, navigator, and first mate made off toward a sandy rise on the right. Reaching the rise, the captain consulted his compass, paced off a few steps, then began furiously digging. As, he scraped the sand from the head of a peg, he cried out; "It's not a bluff, the map's genuine." Inside an hour we had found the second and third pegs. All that was left for us to do was take twenty-five paces, due north! One, two, three At last! twenty-five! We began digging as if mad Jearing to pause even for a moment. Then came a welcome thud as the spade struck wood. With senewed en ergy, we acraped until the casket lay exposed before us!

Cheerleaders

Varsity Cheerleaders — Front Row: Vicks Kropf Carrie Stuart Tor Schneller, Grant Maples, Vickie Hardman, Peggy Hancock, Head Cheerleader; Sue Naylor

Our seven varsity cheerleaders spent many hours of preparation and practice aboard the ship. Throughout the vovage, their purpose was aimed toward building pride in the ship's activities and instilling spirit in the crew. They worked toward this goal at athletic events and pep rallies. At luncheons in the ship's galley, the cheerleaders honored various Pirates for actions which brought glory to the ship. Before games they displayed posters, boosting spirit among the crew. Long after most of the crew had retired, the cheerleaders were still on deck, decorating the bulkheads and lockers. The ship's spirit helped to unify the crew and make this voyage a successful one.

Class Cheerleaders worked with their classes and supported the Junior Varsity team at the games. They were there to urge the team to victory. At the pep rallies they strove with their own classes to win the "Spirit Stick." Song-n-Yell was, for them, the biggest event of the year. The cheerleaders were responsible for keeping the crew together by building enthusiasm and unity. At Song-n-Yell practices they worked with their individual classes and taught cheers and hand movements to seamen. During the year the Junior Varsity Cheerleaders kept spirit high among the crew.

The Crew

Report cards always caused a stir among crew

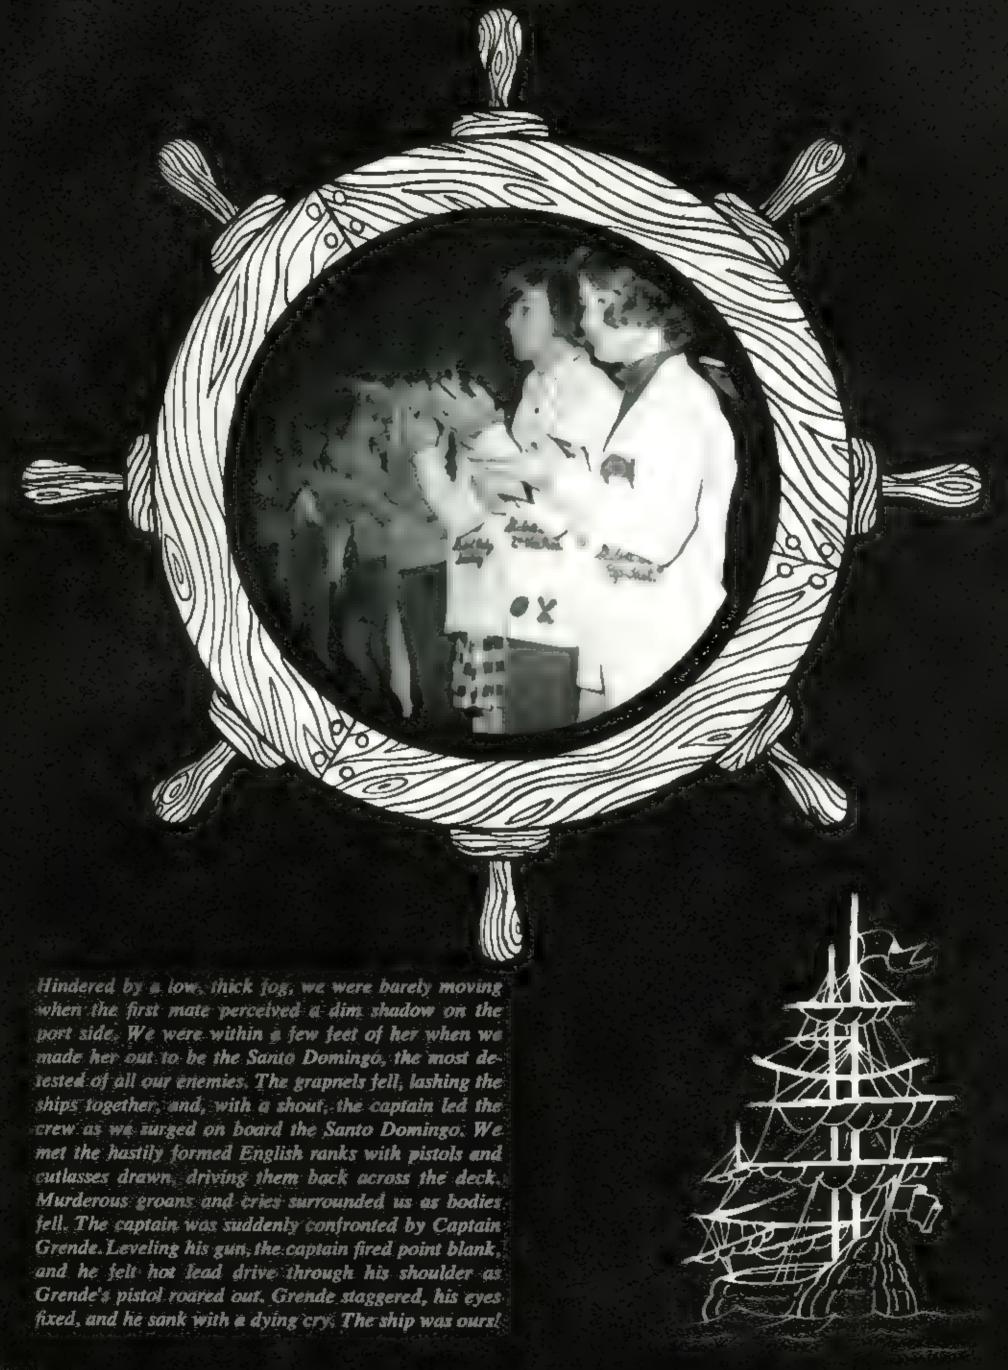

Organizations sponsored activities and parties to celebrate holidays

For many of the crew the voyage was a busy one. The mates found weeks of quiet and used these weeks for catching up on what work they had missed. Then suddenly everything would happen. On these days the crew would walk around dazed and worried about what notebook was due next. which classes had tests that day, or if an assignment had to be handed in. Then came the reward — report cards. Both nervous and confident crew members converged on the report card stations. Sighs of relief sounded like the wind in the rigging, and muttering resembled distant thunder. The crew set sail for new sealanes of learning and experiences.

YORK, JACKIE

ZAMBOS, JOHN G

I remember how it was when we salled into port for the final time on that voyage of long ago. The lookout was the first to sight Santo Cristo. Putting in stays, we headed toward the settlement. As we drew within the reaches of the land wind, we were swept landward. The eveariness of the voyage was no longer apparent as we entered port Battening down was completed, final lines secured, the anchor dropped. The crew lingered. desperately, hastily, recounting almost forgotten advensures. Then, amidst confusion and chaos, the crew drew their belongings, and left. Some would never again walk the decks of a ship, but others would again face the challenge of the sea. Later, the ship lay at anchor, empty, marked by the year's voyage. As I stand amidships and watch the crew leave, I think of how they 100 will soon become a part of the past

You can't go home again
back home to someone who can help you save you, ease the burden for you back home to the old forms and systems of things which once seemed everlasting but which are changing all the time
—back home to the escapes of Time and Memory
